Accommodation in the USA

Accommodation in Berkeley

Berkeley, California, located a short underground ride from San Francisco, is a town of 100,000 inhabitants, and famous as the home of the University of California at Berkeley. The greater Bay Area affords the visitor unlimited opportunities for tourism, study and work; while tourist attractions abound, this is also the home to world renowned institutions of research and higher learning, as well as to Silicon Valley, birthplace of the computer industry... and all this amidst a cool to moderate climate. Whatever your interests, the Bay Area can certainly satisfy your needs!

Accommodation in Boston

The city of Boston should be visited at least once in your lifetime as it is not only a part of the historic past of the United States; it is also a booming metropolitan city. Even though you may find yourself surrounded by skyscrapers and expressways, you will also be surrounded by the colonial and New England feel. Boston is located in the middle of Massachusetts and is also the capital of the state. Cambridge (home of Harvard and MIT) is a short drive or subway ride north across the Charles River. The city's 19th-century glory radiates through its grand architecture, its population of literati, artists and educators and its world-renowned academic and cultural institutions – taking the time to visit Boston is worth every minute.

All accommodation options are subject to a non-refundable USD$75 accommodation placement fee
